

FERTUNA

ITALY, TUSCANY, MAREMMA - FERTUNA

It was a mild and gentle winter on the vines and left the plants in a "soft sleepiness" that allowed them to immediately be filled with energy with the arrival of springtime.

The rain concentrated at the beginning and at the end of March helped to increase quantities, and the diurnal temperature differences experienced in the region have guaranteed a quality production with concentrated flavours and colours, with good maturation of sugars balanced with proper acidic freshness.

The continuous wind allowed the complete maturation of the grapes in the last week of August, while the hot September helped to ripen and mature the grapes fully. The fruit is healthy, complex, and very aromatic.
